"VIVE LA AMERIQUE!" CRY IN LUXEMBURG.

Army Occupation Acclaimed. Grand Duchess Unpopular on Two Scores.

(London Times-Phil. Leader, Cap. Cable.) (By Herbert Bailey.)

Luxemburg, Nov. 27.—The Americans on the German frontier in Luxembourg, who are waiting word to cross into Germany, cap see across Moselle German soldiers waving German flags from the windows.

Treves is decorated with German flags, and the waiting word to cross into Germany, cap see across Moselle German soldiers waving German flags from the windows.

The first American division, the people had profusely decorated the city, waving tattered lamps lighted the batteries.

When Pershing arrived in his car at the palace and inspected a detachment of the Luxembourg army which lined up in front of the building, there were loud cries of "Vive la Amerique" and a band played "Yankee Doodle." Gen. Pershing entered the palace with Gen. Dickman, head of the United States Third army of occupation; Gen. Preston Brown, commanding the third division, and Col. Boyd, his aide. The party was met by the young grand duchess, who was wearing a blue uniform. Soon after the Eighteenth regiment headed by a band, arrived and the general stood at the grand duchess' side on the balcony to watch them march by. The grand duchess became unpopular by entertaining the ex-kaiser on many occasions and the fact that her sister was engaged to marry the crown prince, Rupprecht of Bavaria.

Three Parties in State.

The political situation in the grand duchy is that one party, both influential and powerful, desire a union with France, while another, almost as powerful, wishes to join Belgium. A third party, which is the most widely supported by the masses, wants Luxembourg to remain independent, and today issued a proclamation to our deliverers, expressing its wishes.

The people wear an air of prosperity, but have certainly suffered severely as the result of German occupation.

The Germans paid for all they wanted, but at such high prices the cost of living rose enormously. Luxembourg traders have been sympathetic toward the Germans, reaped a huge harvest, but they are a small section and the masses suffered in consequence.

Lived here all through the German occupation. A lady wearing a union jack, who formerly lived at Kinsington, told me she was again and again insulted by German officers. She could recall no letter and the only way she received news from England was through London newspapers from Berlin. Three British artists who were in Luxembourg in 1914, taken to Berlin and nothing more has been heard of them.

CAUGHT BY CORRESPONDENCE

Aeronautical Engineer Had Plans of the Liberty Motor.

Chicago, Nov. 27.—Mrs. J. O'Malley, an aeronautical engineer, is under arrest here today following the discovery in his office of plans of the Liberty motor, together with a guide book for its assembly and an inspector's manual. It is believed by federal investigators that O'Malley planned to manufacture the motor in competition with the government.

Following his arrest word was sent to Detroit to arrest Mrs. Anna Dorin, formerly a motion picture actress, now an inspector of airplanes at the Packard Motor Car company there. O'Malley admitted he hoped to marry Miss Dorin. It was through the correspondence of the two that the suspicions of the federal agents resulted in the arrest of O'Malley and discovery of the plans in his possession.

BACKACHE AND HEAVY FEELING

Weak, Nervous, Restless Woman in Arkansas Hears of Cardui, Tries It and Is Greatly Benefited—Now Recommends It to Others.

Peach Orchard, Ark.—Mrs. Nonie High, who lives near here, states: "Sometime ago I began to have trouble with my back. I would ache and I could hardly get up when down. I was so weak I would just drag around and did not feel like doing anything at all. I was so nervous I felt I could scream, and . . . such a heavy feeling I could not rest at all. It looked like I was going to get down in bed . . .

I heard of Cardui and thought I would try it and see what it would do for my case. After taking a few bottles I grew stronger . . . The bloated, heavy feeling left me. I wasn't so nervous, in fact, felt better all over. I took twelve bottles and certainly was greatly benefited and can recommend it to any one as a tonic or builder. I often tell others how it helped and strengthened me."

Cardui is a mild vegetable tonic, with no bad after-effects. Its ingredients act in a helping, building way, on the womanly constitution. Ask your druggist. He knows about Cardui. Some druggists have sold it for forty years.—(Adv.)

WANT DEFINITION OF WILSON'S PEACE PLANS

INCREASED PRESSURE FOR EXPLANATION.

"Freedom of Seas," Disarmament, Shipbuilding, Labor, Mooted Points.

(By David Lawrence.)

Washington, Nov. 27.—(Copyright.)

Coming from all parts of this country, and to some extent from abroad, to secure a definition of President Wilson's fourteen points, and particularly of what is meant by freedom of the seas.

How much American interest has been produced by a desire of Europe to know Mr. Wilson's detailed plans, and what is the source of the confusion and misunderstanding that has been made by some British newspapers on the subject, cannot be accurately calculated, of course, but it is apparent that the president plans to make no statement of his intentions until he reaches the peace conference.

This course has been frequently criticized, in and out of Washington, on the ground that each nation will follow one of its own precepts, open diplomacy.

In answer to that, friends of Mr. Wilson argue that it would be very injudicious for him to say through the press what he prefers to say face to face with European statesmen, concerning freedom of the seas, league of nations and other subjects for which the fourteen points have furnished a basis.

It is contended, for instance, that every altruistic and unselfish and lofty may be the professions of every country as the peace table is reached. On the question of disarmament, for example, Mr. Wilson wants to see armaments reduced. If there is no general agreement, then the United States will continue her building of battleships and cruisers. Our record during the last war shows that we can very soon have the biggest navy in the world.

Secretary Daniels went before congress recently and asked for more ships. That news surprised many who supposed Mr. Daniels would not be out of harmony with the idealism of the administration on the subject of large navies. But it develops that the secretary of the navy is taking the safe course. America is to keep on enlarging her navy until there is an agreement on disarmament.

Then there is the matter of shipbuilding. America has built a large fleet of merchant vessels during the war. Foreign nations would like to avail themselves of American shipbuilding facilities and get into the ownership, moreover, of American companies, for the benefit of their own nations. This opportunity for American business men is lost to them? Freedom of the seas means, so far as I can discover, equality on the seas for American business and American capital in commerce and shipbuilding. If European countries are to engage in the same trade, then the United States must be ready to enter the field. The United States facilities must be protected against exploitation by foreign interests.

Another Sidelight.

Persons having sold securities must obtain a permit in writing before they will be permitted to engage in interstate trade under an agreement to the interstate quarantine regulations announced by Surgeon-General Rupert Blue.
